“ Reynolds News for High School Counselors ”

From Reynolds to Ivy League

By Meghan Clancy, Reynolds Honors Program graduate, UVA student

The Reynolds Honors Program may be in its infancy, but it has wasted no time fostering exceptional graduates: meet Pelayo Malgereo. He graduated from Reynolds in the Spring of 2017 and is currently studying Economics at Columbia University in New York City.

When asked how the Honors Program prepared him to take on an Ivy League he responded, “[Reynolds Honors Program] prepared me well and allowed me to have a smooth transition. Courses like Honors literature are similarly challenging to those I am taking now.”

This reflects the quality of preparation for transfer that Reynolds Honors students receive. Malgereo attributes his confidence to apply to Columbia to mentorships and a fellowship he had access to through Honors, stating, “The day I got my acceptance letter into the [Honors] program, I felt motivated and inspired by the eagerness and loved that [Reynolds] faculty, staff, and my peers were invested in the quality of the program.”

Malgereo offers advice to students with similar aspirations: “Do not be afraid of the price tag. It is good to have options. Research scholarships, fellowships, and get involved on campus.” Malgereo’s success is proof that the Reynolds Honors Program truly can be where outstanding Honors students get started!

About Reynolds Honors Program

The Reynolds Honors Program has created a community of academically advanced, intellectually curious learners. Our goal is to prepare students not just to transfer but to excel. Smaller, seminar-style classes, dynamic faculty, and motivated peers help students make the most of their time at Reynolds.

Reynolds Honors Program students receive:

- Substantial additional scholarship funds
- Competitive advantage on transfer applications
- Priority registration and smaller class size
- Invitations to special cultural and academic events
- Transfer agreements with both VCU and JMU Honors Colleges

To be eligible, students should plan to enroll in a transfer degree program (AA or AS), have a 3.5 GPA, and place into college-level courses.

High school seniors can apply for Fall 2019 Reynolds Honors Program admission by March 15 for early decision, or by June 30.
